Prosecuting Officer Busy.

During the absence of State's Attorney Cheney on his annual vacation those lawlessly inclined seemed not to grasp the opportunity but appeared rather to wait until his return, since which time a continual round of debauchery has kept Thomas exceedingly busy.

Last Wednesday morning, the day after Mr. Cheney's return, he was called to Wolcott, where Officer Stevens had Marshall Aims and Melvin Coburn of that place in safe keeping, having arrested them in Craftsbury the day before, on the charge of larceny, stolen goods having been previously found in a house frequented by the two. They were tried before Justice A. W. Foster and fined $24, including costs, each. Other counts of alike nature are held over them.

The evening previous "Tom" was pleasantly surprised (although the pleasure was not mutual) of meeting that old favorite, "Cholly" Childs, who was about to take passage for Elmore on the stage. With sleuth like penetration "Issy" had recognized the out-law and had driven about town with his passenger until the State's Attorney was found, when "Issy" who is a village police, took "Cholly" into custody. He was taken to Stowe Wednesday afternoon and tried before Justice Macutehan on the charge of intoxication preferred last May, when he escaped from the officers. He was fined $5 and costs and on failure to pay was given 20 days in the county jail.

On Friday morning Mr. Cheney was summoned to Hyde Park by Sheriff Robbins, to prosecute in the case of James Jones and John Manning, who had indulged too freely in the "ardent." In a trial before Justice A. V. Wiswell they both pleaded guilty and were given a fine of $5 and costs. Manning paid his fine, but Jones was committed to jail on his failure to give a satisfactory discharge. Merton Leach was arrested in Hyde Park Saturday for intoxication and was fined $5 and costs.

Memorial of Glass of '02.

People's Academy has been handsomely remembered by the Class of 1902. The windows in the assembly room have been furnished with Venetian blinds, made of quartered oak finely finished. These blinds furnish the most satisfactory means of regulating the light and air from windows and, at the same time, are an ornament to the room in which they are placed. The real memorial of the class, however, is placed upon the walls of the Academy Hall. It consists of a frieze thirteen feet long entitled the "Triumph of Alexander." In 1812 Napoleon was expected in Rome, and Thorvaldsen was employed to make a frieze for one of the most spacious halls of the Quirinal Palace. Taking the work of Pheidias as his model, he produced this magnificent piece of statuary representing the entrance of Alexander into Babylon. In a car, drawn by four horses which are driven by winged victory, stands the conqueror, while eleven of his warriors mounted upon their war horses follow him. The scene is represented in high and low relief which gives it the appearance of distance. It forms a valuable addition to the fine art collection possessed by the Academy, and its donors the class of 1902, will be greatly remembered by all friends of the Academy.

W. C. T. U. Meeting.

A well attended W. C. T. U. meeting was held Tuesday afternoon in the Methodist vestry. The superintendents of Fair work are to select literature for distribution at the County Fair. Mrs. Mary T. Davis and Miss Minnie Wright were appointed delegates to the State Convention at Rutland. They were given power to select their own substitutes if they were unable to attend. Mrs. E. O. Stone and Mrs. O. W. Davis were appointed to visit the newly organized W. C. T. U. at Elmore. The next meeting will be held Oct. 1.

When you wake up with a bad taste in your mouth, go at once to Strong & Post, Hyde Park; Hall & Cheney, Morrisville; M. J. Leach, Wolcott; J. J. Varen, Stowe; or C. Campbell, Centerville and get a true sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. One or two doses will make you well. They also cure biliousness, sick headache and constipation.

POOR HUMAN NATURE.

One Phase of It Illustrated by the Dropping of a Coin.

It was raining hard when a cab drove up to one of the Broadway theaters and a man and woman alighted. The woman hurried into the playhouse, while the man drew out a roll of bills and handed the driver his fare. As he hurried toward the lobby, thrusting the balance of his money into his pocket, there was a jingling sound as a coin fell to the sidewalk. The man paused for a moment, looking at the walk in search of the coin; then, as the rain increased, he hurried into the playhouse.

Several persons had heard the coin fall. By the sound it could not have been of large denomination, but everybody looked for it, not openly, but furtively. First a big policeman sauntered across the walk with eyes bent on the pavement. A cab driver descended from his box and followed in the policeman's trail. The chauffeur of a private automobile next took a trip over the course. Two well dressed young men smoking anteperformance cigarettes walked abreast from the sheltering lobby to the curbstone in the downpour. A newsboy who came up at that juncture scented a "find" of some description and without any attempt at concealment "rubbed" energetically about the walk, pausing now and then to ask anxiously, "What was it?"

The search, both furtive and open, was abandoned, and the characters moved away. From the doorway of an adjoining building emerged a man of the actor out of work type. He glanced around rather shamefacedly; but, seeing only one person, and that one apparently not noticing his actions, he made a thorough and protracted search. Near the curb he found the coin and, holding it to the light to learn its value, disclosed a penny.—New York Press.
